DENVER, CO - As part of their national advertising campaign, Revive Energy Mints has signed on world renowned celebrity Eric "Butterbean" Esch to become an official endorser. Super-Heavyweight boxer, WWF wrestler, kickboxer and mixed martial artist Butterbean developed a cult following after he burst onto the Toughman Contest scene in the United States before entering the world of professional boxing in 1994. He was a five time World Toughman Heavyweight Champion along with holding the IBA Super-Heavyweight World Championship belt. He has been featured in top video games, movies, television, and radio with his most recent appearance on "Hulk Hogan's Celebrity Championship Wrestling."

Revive Energy Mints are the hottest new trend in the energy boost market. They provide the same kick as a leading energy drink, plus the healthy benefits of the world's most powerful superfoods: acai, mangosteen, and goji.

Since Revive Energy Mints have hit the market last year, they have completely eclipsed predicted sales. They offer an alternative to energy drinks and energy shots. They have taken supplemental energy and gone one step further by providing a more compact, no liquid, better tasting, and healthier form of energy. All this along with providing fresh breath! Not only do Revive Energy Mints provide all these benefits, but they offer a price point that is about 1/6th the cost of the leading energy drink. With consumers feeling the pinch of the economy right now, they are increasingly turning to cheaper sources of their daily energy and health needs and Revive Energy Mints are the perfect fix.

Revive Energy Mints have used a combination of national advertising combined with a mass distributorship program to allow for its exponentially increasing market share of supplemental energy. Revive is very excited and happy to welcome Butterbean aboard and Revive looks forward to a long and prosperous relationship!
